

Investnet and FundQuest Form Strategic Partnership to Provide Enhanced Technology Support to Advisors

Boston, MA, and Chicago, IL February 9, 2010—FundQuest, a leading global investment and managed account services company announces today, that it has entered into a platform services agreement with Investnet Asset Management, Inc. (Investnet), an innovative provider of wealth advisory solutions, industry-leading technology and back office operations. FundQuest provides managed account services to more than 180 financial advisory firms.

This strategic partnership will enable FundQuest to enhance its integrated advisor support services offering, which includes: advanced advisor productivity tools, high-quality back-office services, sophisticated investment management and research services and advisor consulting services.

“This agreement will give FundQuest the opportunity to leverage both the capabilities and scale of Investnet’s technology platform as we continue growing our integrated and customized advisory product solutions,” said James L. Fox, CEO of FundQuest. “We will now have increased flexibility to develop additional investment products, introduce new investment solutions to the US marketplace and leverage the vast resources of BNP Paribas Investment Partners.”

Under the agreement, Investnet will provide elite technology and operational platform support to FundQuest. It will also maintain and develop new technology that will enable FundQuest to create innovative investment solutions to meet the needs of advisors and their clients. In addition, Investnet will bring its expertise in back-office functionality to FundQuest, assisting the firm with account initiation and set-up; custodial download processing; account trading and reconciliation; and computation of performance reports.

“The strategic partnership between FundQuest and Investnet will provide more advisors with enhanced access to open architecture solutions, services and technology, empowering them to deliver on their fiduciary commitment to clients,” said Jud Bergman, CEO of Investnet. “We see this as an exciting opportunity to help FundQuest to continue to deliver innovative investment solutions, while bringing increased efficiency to the planning and advisory process.”

Investnet has assembled a comprehensive array of advanced functionality—all easily accessible through a single gateway designed to provide at-hand resources that bring a new level of support to the financial community—allowing for maximized operational efficiencies and streamlined practice management. The transition to Investnet’s technology and operational support services is expected to be completed within the next 90 days.
