ENVESTNET LAUNCHES "MARKET MORNING" CONFERENCE CALL SERIES

Weekly Call Gives Advisors Firsthand Access to Leading Market Experts

CHICAGO – September 26, 2011 – Envestnet Inc., a leading provider of technology-enabled wealth management solutions for financial advisors, is pleased to announce its new series of Market Morning conference calls. The calls provide access to leading industry and market professionals who discuss recent market trends and key investing insights every Wednesday morning. Envestnet is committed to empowering financial advisors by delivering expert insights, particularly in the wake of heightened market volatility.

"Our first Market Morning call was put together in August to help advisors deal with a suddenly turbulent market environment. So many advisors dialed in, we realized there was great demand for timely information and analysis that was easily accessible," said Bill Crager, President of Envestnet. "Volatility drives uncertainty. We have access to so many important perspectives—and connecting those voices to advisors provides valuable insight and context to address the uncertainties that investors have about today's environment. The Market Morning calls further our mission to empower advisors with top-notch investment information, services and solutions. We will continue to offer these insights and advice on an ongoing basis."

All calls are held on Wednesdays at 9 a.m. Eastern and require pre-registration for dial-in codes.

"Our speakers are able to talk about what's happening in the markets and offer their unique outlook on what steps advisors can take to build strong, enduring portfolios," Crager said. "We expect the Market Morning series to grow, to continue to attract high-profile investment professionals and to provide valuable insights."
